

The Murder of Mr. Wickham, Claudia Gray: Austen fans, cozy mystery readers

Back in a Spell, Lana Harper: Teens and emerging adults with a goth outlook

Small World, Laura Zigman: Sisters, mothers and mothers-in-law, Boston types

Black Cake, Charmaine Wilkerson: Sisters, mothers and mothers-in-law, California types

Starter Villain, John Scalzi: Everyone but especially snarky Marvel fans

Murderbot, Martha Wells: Everyone but especially introverts and Trekkies

Same Time Next Summer, Annabel Monaghan: Hallmark movie loving friends and family

The Black Witch, Laurie Forest: Anyone who re-reads Harry Potter every year

The Road to Roswell, Connie Willis: Friends who love Dr. Who and miss The X Files.

Ink Blood Sister Scribe, Emma Törzs: the book your friend who loves to read missed

Kiss the Girl, Zoraida Córdova: For the Swiftie/TikTok fiend in your life

Assistant to the Villain, Hannah Nicole Maehrer: For fans of The Princess Bride, movie or book.

Going Infinite, Michael Lewis: True Crime but make it The Social Network meets Wall Street

The Other Bennet Sister, Janice Hadlow: For the Austen fan who doesn't want a twist

The Scandalous Confessions of Lydia Bennet, Witch, Melinda Taub: for the snarky goth Austen fan

The Gundle, Steven Rowley: Everyone except maybe your homophobic uncle. Auntie Mame, but make it a gay, not tragically dead Matthew Perry.

A Star is Bored, Byron Lane: For the celebrity obsessed, a fictionalized version of life as Carrie Fisher's assistant.